Co-op Agency Kills Resolution To Reconsider Milk Order Vote

Over 500 member-dairymen at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan Cooperative Milk Producers Bargaining Agency Thursday killed a resolution to have a ballot vote on the New York Milk marketing order returned to local cooperatives for reconsideration.

The resolution to reconsider came on the heels of a speech by. Congressman Samuel S. Stratton of the 35th congressional district of New York

Stratton told the dairymen meeting in Syracuse, N. Y., "There is no doubt that a resounding 'No' vote on the November 25th New York milk market order referendum would be the quickest and most effective way of cleaning up those outmoded and undemocratic features of the milk order referendum proceedure"

Feeders everywhere are talking about Ful-O-Pep Cattle-izer Beef Supplement

In feedlot after feedlot—commercial and farm—feeders are reporting better gains and conversions at lower feed cost.

The reason: It's Ful-O-Pep Cattle-izer Beef Supplement . . . designed to enable the beef animal to get up to 20% more energy from the same amount of feed . . . and to use that extra energy for faster, more efficient gains.

Gain, efficiency of gain, cost of gain, market value of cattle, and other factors are reflected in net return. And net return, cattlemen are reporting, is higher when Ful-O-Pep Cattle-izer Beef Supplement is fed.

Lean Hogs Gain Best

USDA tests show that lean hogs can gain more rapidly and efficiently than fat ones. This information proves the swine growers can produce meatier carcasses without sacrificing feedlot performance, says Dwight E. Younkin, extension livestock specialist.

Demand Is Good, Offerings Light

Live broiler prices advanced nearly three quarters of a cent during the 24 hour period ending 10:30 Friday morning.

Delmarva reported prices of 13.7 to 15.5 at farms for 892,100 head purchased during the period. The purchases included 308,000 head sold at Thursday's auction in Selbyville, Del.

Demand was good for light auction offerings. Estimated slaughter by Eastern Shore processors for the week end was 454,000 head compared to the 583,000 head last week end.

The Delmarva broiler-feed ratio for the week ending November 15 was steady with the previous week at 3.3. Broilers during the week averaged 16.60 per pound and mash cost the grower $99.34 per ton.

The ratio for the comparable week a year ago was 2.8 when broilers averaged 13.27 and mash cost the grower $95.23 per ton.

From Where We Stand . . .

WE COUNT OUR BLESSINGS

In spite of the two years of drought we have lived through here in Lancaster County, there are still many things we have to be thankful for.

Farmers of this county have contributed toward making this the best fed, best housed, and best clothed nation in history, and we ought to be thankful that we have had a part in supplying the feast for this holiday.

Thanksgiving Day is a purely American feast, begun traditionally by the Pilgrims, and continued through the centuries as a national day of religious and gastronomic significance.

Even today when all the foods of the world are available to enrich our daily diet, the Thanksgiving menu of the average household is still predominantly American in origin and production. A sumptuous feast can be spread with only the kinds of food that the pre-Columbian Indians knew and taught the white men how to raise and use. An all-American Thanksgiving menu is tempting to a gourmet's taste and satisfying to a hungry, growing boy.

Turkey, cranberries, both white and sweet potatoes, numerous sorts of beans, squash, pumpkin, tapioca, corn, including sweet corn and popcorn, peppers, avocado, cocoa and chocolate, oysters, pineapple, chestnuts, peanuts, brazil nuts, cashew nuts, and while not strictly a food, the tobacco of the after-dinner cigaret, cigar or pipe. All of these are of strictly American origin.

Even without excluding non-American dishes, the usual Thanksgiving dinner, with roast turkey, cranberry sauce, string beans, corn bread, pumpkin pie on the menu, is American enough. Those who wish can easily build in their kitchens a strictly made-in-America Thanksgiving bill of fare.

The turkey that is the center of the usual Thanksgiving feast has a dual claim to the 100 per cent citizenship. It is as native to the American continent as the Indians. Yet the turkey also has a record of early immigration from Europe.

Cranberry sauce is as American as the roast turkey that it accompanies to the relish of the feast. Cranberries are found only on the American continent. The cranberry bogs of New Jersey are famous the world over.

"Fixin's" are indispensable to the turkey, and sweet potatoes are indispensable to the "fixin's." Sweet potatoes, as well as the white potatoes, misnamed Irish, are American in origin.

The sweet potatoes, "taters" south of the Mason and Dixon line, are probably of tropical origin. At any rate, they thrive best now in the warmer parts of the country.

The white potato is not Irish but Peruvian in origin. It got its misnomer because it was so widely grown there and Irish immigrants in the early 1700's brought large quantities of them to the United States.

For the salad course, there may be avocadoes; also called alligator pears, for these are native to this hemisphere.

The bread should be corn bread, of course.

Corn is the greatest of the agricultural gifts of America to the world. When the first settlers from England found this grain being cultivated by the Indians they called it Indian corn to distinguish it from the use of the word corn to mean in British usage all kinds of grain, wheat, barley, rye and all the rest.

Corn probably originated in the South American highlands but by the time the white men came its cultivation had spread as far north on this continent as the climate permitted.

In the fields of Indian corn found by the early colonists, there were orange-yellow pumpkins growing much as they are grown today.

Pumpkin pie is as Thanksgiving as turkey, yet just 50 years after Columbus the American pumpkin had been so adopted in Europe that it was being called the Turkish cucumber.

Beans of many varieties deserve a place in the American Thanksgiving table, for they were extensively cultivated by all the native populations of the New World.

Nuts give Thanksgiving a double dessert.

America is a land of rich and varied food supplies, capable of sharing its bounty with other areas of the world and willing to aid other countries to raise larger crops of food, often of western hemisphere origin. We are thankful for this at this Thanksgiving as it may help bring peace to the future of a less hungry world.

Signs of the Times — Nervous? Then why not invest in a Fidget Gidget. It's a spring device marketed by a Boston firm that is supposed to relieve nervous tension when pressed between the thumb and forefinger. We still think a day on a tractor might do just as well.

Nowadays the poor enjoy the same luxuries as the rich. The only difference is that they need more time to pay for them.

That's Progress — Leisure, a magazine distributed free to barbershops, is printed in large type to accomodate weak-eyed persons when they take off their glasses to have their hair cut.

Pesticide Mystery — Government officials puzzle over catches of sharks, tuna and other ocean fish containing high doses of DDT and other pest killers. The cause isn't known. Fatty tissues of some fish caught far off shore contained pesticide concentrations of up to 200 parts per million. Government limits for most edible meats are about 10 parts per million or less.

Inner Power

Lesson for November 24, 1963

Bible Material: Acts 26: II Corinthians 5 through 7

Devotional Reading: II Corinthians 5:1-10.

EVERY ONE who observes people with even a little penetration of insight, knows the difference between lives that have inner power and lives that crumple and may even shatter like a misfired rocket, for lack of some inner power which more effective lives possess. To put it in railroad language, some people are like locomotives, running on their own power, power generated on board, so to speak. Other people are like freight cars—they will move, but only if pushed.

Dr. Foreman

What is the secret of inner power?

First-level motives

The time-honored name for what drives men, gently or stormily as it may be, into action, is Motive. Some persons are without motive entirely. They see no reason for their existence, they do not march, they dawdle, they drift. They are suggestible, they have no inner consistency. They follow the crowd, they never lead it. Other persons are strong in a wrong-headed way, wrong-hearted too. They are set into action by wrong motives, such as pride, the desire for pleasure, fame or flattery. Above such men in the scale of character are others moved by what we can call Christian motives at the first level, a level not too difficult to reach. Putting several factors together, we can see that some good people, Christians, are motivated by the simple wish to be thought well of. "How'm I doing?" is a fair question, one that ought to be asked Only let's make sure we ask it of the right people. Saint Paul, who holds high place on the roster of world-Christians, certainly wanted both God and men to think well of him. "What we are (he meant what I am) is known to God, and I hope also to your conscience." The judgment of God and the judgment of the Christian conscience—these were both important to Paul. He mentions them in the same breath in II Cor. 5:11. Not that he thought as much of the approval of men as he did of the approval of God; but he was eager to have both. What people think of you is important, and above all it is God's approval that comes first.

For Him

Good as this is, it is not top-flight Christian living. The desire to keep one's record clean will go a long way; but it will not take us as far as some other motives. For the pattern of the Christian life, the dedicated life, is not mainly a pattern of orders-and-obedience. For some people this is all there is to Christianity. "God tells me what to do and I do it." But there is a higher motive than simple blind obedience to the word of command. It is the motive of love. Paul does not use the word "love" in his letters very often, yet it comes out at crucial points. Paul says "the love of Christ controls us."

Paul puts this another way without using the word "love" at all. He speaks of Christian believers as living no longer for themselves "but for him who for their sakes died." We go a long way farther for one we admire and love, than we will for orders, no matter what penalty may be attached. Christian life, in short, is not at its best when the driving motive is that of passing the inspection of the all-seeing God. It is at its best when it is not lived by rote or by rule, but when the rote and the rule, when they must be, come from one who has loved us long. The Christian life, in short, is at its best when it is motivated by gratitude to the One who died for all.

The ministry of reconciliation

God is not man's enemy. God is for us. (This does not mean He smiles on every bit of foolishness or sin we can think of!) If that sounds familiar to the Christian reader, it was not familiar when Paul discovered it. Many outside the church and inside too need to discover it afresh. The feeling, the conviction, that God is for me that "He will not let me go nor let me down or let me off," the discovery that His intentions for me go beyond my own imaginings—this can be the most powerful inner drive known to man. Every person who accepts the forgiving mercy of God has a right to confidence in the support of God. His this assurance is unfailing power.

To Utilize Short Courses

Many educational courses are offered by Penn State University that do not require the student to be on the campus A large number of correspondence courses are offered at all times during the year, these cover all phases of agriculture and home economics. Other short courses are offered on the campus that range from a few days to several weeks in duration. Additional information is available. Local farmers and homeowners are urged to take advantage of these practical educational courses.

To Protect Pigs and Lambs

Swine and sheep producers should protect new-born animals from cold weather and drafts For the first several days these young animals can not endure much cold and should be kept from chilling Heat lamps or brooders in the corner of the stall or pen have worked successfully for many livestock producers Special effort the first few days of the life of a pig or lamb will pay dividend

To Help Your Fire Department

On too many occasions the fire department out in the rural areas is limited in fighting a fire because of the lack of water, or the truck cannot get close to the water supply. Farmers are urged to consult with the local fire chief to be sure that all possible facilities are understood before the emergency arrives. The water in a farm pond is useless unless the fire truck can get close to the edge of the water. Plans in advance may prevent greater losses.

Slaughter No-Profit Cows

Culling unprofitable cows is good business anytime, says Stephen B. Spencer, extension dairy specialist, and November is an excellent time to give those milk production and profit-per-cow records closer scrutiny. Even though slaughter prices for cull cows may not be high, anyone keeping milk cows is in the dairy, not beef, business, and should cull animals on the basis of production and profit making ability.

Wildlife Club Sees Hunt Films

Meeting at the home of Robert Ulrich, Penryn, the club made plans to supply its turkey feeder in Potter County.

Paul B. Wipple, Lancaster, in his Manager's report at all three meetings, noted Production Credit Assoc. loans exceeded $5,400,000. outstanding, the most in the history of the Assoc This is over $1, 300,000 above last year at this time, brought about by rapid changes and increases necessary in agricultural changes, new buidings etc.

Federal Land Bank Assoc has loans outstanding of over $6,800 000 and has had steady increases in the past 5 years, between one million and one million and a half each year. During this time Association has increased their membership by approximatey 150 members.

Try New Recipe or Food Product

What goes on in a woman's mind when she sees a new recipe or food product? That's what Mississippi home economists wanted to know and here's what they learned after they completed a study. Home economists found there were three types of women, report Penn State extension nutrition specialists. One group likes to try new foods and recipes; another hesitates before they try new products aend recipes; and a third group won't try anything new — food or recipe. A high percentage of women would go ahead and try when they saw both the recipe and a picture of the dish instead of just the recipe.

What's Cooking For Thanksgiving?

By Mrs. Richard C. Spence

You may have already decided upon the main entree for your Thanksgiving dinner. Be it chicken, turkey or duck here are some accompaniments that will go well with any of them.

For something different in a quick bread, try whole-wheat biscuits. They are both quick and easy to make.

WHOLE WHEAT BISCUITS

1 cup whole-wheat flour
⅞ cup all-purpose flour
1 tablespoon baking powder
¾ teaspoon salt
¼ to ⅓ cup fat
¾ cup water or milk

Mix the dry ingredients together. Cut in the fat and add liquid to make a soft dough. Place the dough on a lightly floured board, and pat out or roll until one-half or three-fourths of an inch thick; or knead gently, and roll to the desired thickness. Cut into biscuits. Bake at 450 degrees (very hot oven) for about 15 minutes.

BRAN MOLASSES MUFFINS

2 cups whole bran cereal with wheat germ
1 cup milk
1 egg
½ cup molasses
2 tablespoons soft shortening
1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt

Combine whole bran cereal, milk, egg, molasses and shortening; beat well. Sift together flour, soda and salt; add to wholle bran cereal mixture, stirring only until combined. Fill greased muffin pans ⅔ full. Bake in moderately hot oven (400 degrees) about 20 minutes. Serve hot. Makes about 16 muffins.

4 ounces pasteurized process cheese spread, cubed

Saute onion in butter or margarine. Combine the remaining ingredients. Add sauteed onions. Mix well. Pour in a greased 1½ quart oven proof dish. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) covered for 30 minutes. Remove cover and continue cooking 30 minutes. Serve hot. Makes 6 servings.

EGGPLANT AU GRATIN

1⅔ cups Ritz cracker crumbs
½ cup olive oil or salad oil
2 8-ounce cans tomato sauce
1 clove garlic, chopped
1 tablespoon minced parsley
¼ teaspoon basil
1 teaspoon oregano
6 ounce package Mozzarella cheese

Pare eggplant, cut crosswise, making ¼ inch slices. Dip slices in egg, then into crumbs, about 1 cup. Saute in oil until golden brown. Drain well. Combine tomato sauce, remaining crumbs, and next 4 ingredients. Simmer gently for 20 minutes, stirring frequently. Alternate slices of eggplant, sauce and slices of cheese in a one-quart dish. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees) for 30 minutes. Makes 4 to 6 servings.

Record Nut Crop This Year

The nut crop this year totals 80 percent more than last year, the total estimated at 308,000 tons. The figure includes 80,000 tons of walnuts, about 70,000 tons of almonds, and 148,500 tons of pecans. The pecan crop is 66 percent above average. Other nuts, such as filberts, make up the balance of the total nut crop.

This record-breaking crop of nuts means lower prices on the nuts you buy now and for holiday use. And if you have a home freezer, you might freeze some for use during the rest of the year.

Tip For Storage Improvement

If limited closet space makes it necessary to store some of the family's winter clothing in the guest room closet, put less frequently worn garments, such as party clothes, and special sports clothes, in the less convenient location. This will help to make it easier and quicker to take out and put back garments that get the most wear. It will be an easy matter to remove clothing from the guest room closet when the occasion warrants it.

Be Good To Your Camera

Dust off lens frequently with a lens cleaning tissue. Occasionally, before loading the camera, clean or blow dust off the interior of it. When taking unusual pictures, such as closeups or very fast or slow exposures, always return settings to the average or normal conditions.

Advantages Of A Basic Dress

A basic dress can mean the answer to the woman who says, "I have nothing to wear."

A truly basic dress can be worn almost any place, at any time of day or year. It can go to church, to luncheons, to work, or to concerts. When a woman choses accessories according to the effect she wishes to produce, her basic dress can become tailored, glamorous, or casual.

The basic dress should be simple in styling, have becoming lines, and neckline should allow for use of jewelry or scarves without demanding attention for itself. Three-quarter length sleeves are more adaptable than short sleeves.

cream in crust; spread 2 tablespoons preserves over ice cream; freeze. Repeat two more times with remaining ice cream. In a saucepan over low heat melt marshmallows with remaining 2 tablespoons preserves. Beat egg whites until frothy; continuing to beat, sprinkle in sugar, then slowly pour in marshmallows. Beat until stiff peaks form. Spread on pie, sealing edges. Place pie on board in preheated 500 degree oven. Bake 1-3 minutes or until meringue is delicately browned. Makes 1 9-inch pie.

To make serving easy, the crust and layered ice cream filling can be prepared in advance and stored in the freezer. Just before dessert time, whip up the marshmallow-flavored meringue, spread it on the pie, sealing the edges carefully, and bake.

Know Your Eggs

Egg grades refer only to quality, explains Harold Neigh, Penn State extension marketing agent. Eggs which are labeled "AA" or "A" are of the best possible quality. They can be used for poaching, frying, and for baking food of all kinds. Size is not considered in grades since it does not affect quality.

for you to elect rural representatives to the state legislature", he said. If the state does not have more representatives from rural areas, we are going to see more and more laws passed for the benefit of urban dwellers.

He said he believes we are "jeopardizing the whole agribusiness of the state" because we are not graduating enough good young men with agricultural backgrounds. With all the recent publicity on fewer farms and smaller farm populations, young men on farms are turning to other fields of study.

Turning to other uses of farm lands, Secretary Bull said, "Something is wrong when two or three businessmen can buy a farm, turn it into a pitch and putt golf course, ski lodge or fee-fishing ponds and borrow three times as much money on it as a farmer can borrow on the same farm." If a farmer turns his farm to that kind of use, he asked, is he still a farmer?

He pointed to the high capital investment needed in today's agriculture. "If we take the total farm investment and multiply it by six per cent we get the total farm income in the United States. This is not a particularly happy situation." he said. He suggested that Young Farmers might be as well off financially to sell out, invest the money at six per cent, and retire in Florida.

Bull called for more research in marketing to keep our foreign markets and compete with foreign products coming into the United States. "Europe is looking at American Markets. They are upgrading their sanitary standards and will be competing with locally produced food products We are going to have to market our products out of the country, and we must do more research to keep our markets"

He said his department recenty learned that a majority of the institutions in the state use frozen eggs put up in 10 pound bags, but one processor in the state puts up such a product. Several processors are now looking at the possibility of marketing such a package.

He called on the Young Farmers to encourage such research to boast the sale of Pennsylvania products.

Drought Loans Are Available Through F.H.A.

Loan programs of the Farmers Home Administration can help counter the damage caused by the drought in Lancaster and Lebanon Counties, Richard W. Hoover, Local supervisor of the agency said this week.

Mr. Hoover reported that his agency provides emergency loans to help individual farmers maintain normal operations which enables them to avoid selling off foundation livestock, machinery, and other capital assets needed to operate their farms.

In addition, the local FHA county supervisor emphasized that other loan programs available to farmers and others can be of direct importance in lessening or even eliminating future drought hazards.

"FHA loans available to individual farmers, associations, and small towns finance such projects as farm ponds and other water storage construction, community water and irrigation systems, and dam and reservoir construction in small watersheds," Mr. Hoover said.

Inquiries regarding the agency's assistance in improving water supplies available to individual farmers and communities and financing operations on farms already affected by the drought can be made at the office located in the Lancaster Post Office Building, Room No. 222.

● Dedication

Modern laboratory and other well-equipped facilities of the new four-story red brick home for the Department will provide for improved services to all agriculture and the consumer public, Secretary Bull said. Except for animal disease work, all food, seed, feed, fertilizer, pesticide and other laboratories of the Department will be housed in a large wing of the new building.

The structure is expected to be ready for occupancy some time next summer. An "open house" program is planned for late summer or early fall.

A useful accessory for swimming pools is a gazebo built along one side. Roofed with an open, trellis style system of Douglas fir beams, supported on 4x4 posts, the gazebo provides a shady cooling off spot for swimmers and a place for adults to lounge in comfort while watching children. Cool gazebo will prove a favorite spot for summer outdoor living, entertaining and dining.

Milk Co-op Approves Increase Of Two Cents Dues Per CWT

A two cent per hundredweight increase in dues was approved by delegates of the Interstate Milk Producers Cooperative Thursday at the organization's closing session in the Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Philadelphia.

The vote came after a one hour discussion at the 27th annual meeting, and endorsed action of the co-op's board of directors who had earlier proposed the dues increase. One cent of the checkoff on milk shipped will go toward financing the cooperative activities and the other cent will be used for milk promotion activities — probably through American Dairy Association, athough the resolution did not specifically restrict the use of the increase

The increase in funds for operation of the cooperative is needed, it was explained, because of the change last year in the Internal Revenue law which requires cooperatives to return in cash 20 per cent of each year's net savings.

The increase in commission was the third since 1947 when dues went from four to five cents per hundred weight Another one cent increase became effective in 1953.

Because of the new tax ruling general manager James Honan said the cooperative's reserve account would have dropped from the present $740,000 to $602,000 in the next seven years He added that market risks are continually rising even as income would have dwindled

The extra one-cent commission increase, at today's present voume of member's milk of one billion pounds, will bring in an average of $105,000 more net savings a year.

Honan said the cash return "forced" by the IRS legislation will amount to about $42,500 — equal to about one-half cent a hundredweight on present production.

"So for the one-cent increased commission for Inter-State finances," he said, members will get about one-half cent back each year"

Honan said Inter-State has written assurances from both the American and Atlantic Dairy Associations that the present program, which amounts to 4,800 a year, will be continued in the Lancaster area.

Honan noted that members who have already signed a deduction authorization to give two cents a month to ADA, the association will return these deduction cards to members and notify members' dealers to stop the present two-cent ADA checkoff.

Approval of the Inter-State dues increase, when put into effect, will cancel the ADA checkoff without a loss in milk promotion for the local market by the association.

He asserted, "A No vote would not be an automatic end of federal orders," and added that he could not remember when a proposed order had ever been defeated in a New York referendum.

Stratton criticized what he called undue pressure by the U. S. Secretary of Agriculture in promoting market orders. He said midwestern dairymen, after defeating a proposed amendment to a market order, "were told by the Secretary, 'Now you fellows get together and vote right or you won't have any order at all.'"

Earlier the membership voted on recommended decisions on the New York Federal order. The proposed changes, among other things, would eliminate the free hauling of bulk milk provision in the present order.

The ballots will not be counted until next week, and the individual cooperative votes will be cast in the November 25 referendum.

Abner Risser and Simeon Horton, Mount Joy, represented the Mount Joy Milk Producers Cooperative at the convention.
